VETERANS TRIBUTE. Local veterans organizations, town officials and the general public gathered Monday at 11 a.m. to pay tribute to the veterans of all wars during Veterans Day ceremonies at Spring Grove cemetery. Col. M. F. Ahearn, commanding officer of the U. S. Marine training center, gave the principal address. Rev. J. Everett Bodge, pastor of South

Church, gave the prayer, Commander Benjamin Brown of Post 8 American Legion delivered the eulogy and Gordon B. Cannon, commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars post along with Commander Brown placed the wreath. Benediction was by Rev. J. Everett Bodge and taps was sounded by Raymond Hunt of the Andover High school band.

Andover Could Lose Raytheon

Raytheon Manufacturing Co., is still "very much interested" in the industrial site in West Andover which was rezoned at a special town meeting in August.

A corporate official said Wednesday that the company is still planning on the Andover location but possible court action could force a decision to move elsewhere.

A Superior Court decision recently upheld the town's action in rezoning the parcel of land for industrial use. A dozen abutters of the area had challenged the decision and threaten to carry the case to the state Supreme Court.

If the case goes to the Supreme Court, this would force Raytheon to re-evaluate its position, with the result that the company could move from the town completely.

Also, if Raytheon leaves, and the Supreme Court upholds the lower court decision, then the land would revert to an industrial A zoning which would permit the entrance of an industry of any type into the area.

Currently a covenant exists on the land which insures that Raytheon will carefully screen its property from the abutting residential zone. The firm has also agreed to other stipulations as set down by the planning board and industrial commission to protect the town and abutters.

If Raytheon does not build there, the covenant has no value.

The deadline to appeal to the Supreme Court is next Thursday. Town Counsel Fredric S. O'Brien said Tuesday night that as yet, he had not received any information as to whether there would be an appeal or not.

The appeal would take several months to process in the higher court. This would probably extend beyond the time that Raytheon has contracted for the purchase of the land with Danton Realty Trust

Society Pays Tribute To Rafton

The surprise announcement of the renaming of a major AVIS reservation in honor of Harold R. Rafton, long-time AVIS member and trustee, and the presentation of certificates of honorary membership to three Andover citizens were highlights of the annual meeting of the Andover Village Improvement Society, held Tuesday at the Phillips Academy Log Cabin.

In announcing that henceforth the High Plain Reservation would be known as the Harold R. Rafton Reservation, Claus Dengler, AVIS president, cited Mr. Rafton's years of dedication to the cause of conservation and stated "He has done more for AVIS, and hence for the town, than any other trustee." A sign bearing the new name was presented to Mr. Rafton. Similar signs will be placed at entrances to the reservation.

Certificates of honorary membership in the society were presented to Mr. and Mrs. William G. Hatch and to Selectman Sidney P. White in appreciation of their gifts of land to the society.

Approximately 100 members and guests attended the dinner meeting and program. During a short business meeting following dinner, committee chairmen reported on the year's activities and members elected as new trustees Mrs. J. Edison Pike and Robert J. Johnson. Re-elected for three year terms were Mrs. Richard A. Katz, Harold R. Rafton, and David MacDonald, Jr. David Roberts, Jr. was re-elected as a member of the investment committee.

Following dinner and the business meeting, Joshua L. Miner, President of Outward Bound, Inc., presented color slides of a recent trip to Africa. Last spring, Mr.

and Mrs. Miner had been on an extensive safari in East Africa, in the shadow of Mt. Kilimajaro. Their slides of the abundant and varied wildlife of the region included fascinating sequences of lions stalking their prey, leopards climbing trees to lie in wait, and many other marvelous scenes.

Top Teachers At Meeting

A corps of Andover math teachers from the high school, both junior highs and the elementary schools, from Phillips and Abbot Academies will be soaking up new mathematical ideas at the Statler Hilton Hotel in the next three days at a once-every-fifteen-years Boston meeting for New England math teachers, K through 12.

With some 3,000 other New England math teachers, they will choose from more than 70 section

Town Has Law Cases Pending

The town has a total of 33 cases pending before the courts, Town Counsel Fredric S. O'Brien told the selectmen Tuesday night.

Counsel was reporting on the number of cases on his calendar in response to a request for such information from board members. He said the case load was about normal for a town this size.

Of the total, most are before the state appellate tax board. There are 18 tax appeals pending, counsel said, and added that as a general rule the board runs about four to five years behind in hearing such cases.

Pending also are, two public liability cases, one mandamus case, four in which the town is plaintiff, three zoning cases and five land damage cases.

Advice Sought On School Expansion

The school committee decided to take the combined problem of expansion and updating at Central, Sanborn and Shawsheen to architect Frank Crimp for consultation, on Committeeman William King's motion Tuesday night.

Top priority, the schoolmen agree, goes to relieving crowding at Central and Shawsheen, though the committee split on whether the first step was a new school building (where?) or expansion and updating of Central to make it adequate for the type of continuous progress program already planned for Bancroft and West School, when its addition is complete.

Crimp will also be asked to look at Carmel Woods to determine if it is a possible elementary school site as Committeeman William Doherty claims, or impossible because of high rocky ledge which cannot be made level enough for a school and adequate grounds, as Supt. Edward I. Erickson and other administrators claim after another visit to the site.

At any rate, it was obvious Tuesday night that expansion and updating of existing schools will be an important part of the Andover school building picture, as well as the building of new schools. Committeewoman Virginia Cole, King and Chairman Dr. Richard A. Katz sounded the note of equal educational opportunity for children in all parts of the town, in pushing for giving all elementary schools adequate library, large group and other learning facilities needed for the continuous progress programs the committee has adopted.

Mrs. Cole reported of complaints from parents of children who would not be having the continuous progress program which would be available to Bancroft children. She said the school committee owed it to provide this kind of program for children in all parts of Andover as soon as possible.

Doherty and King, the committee's long-range planning committee, said the town should acquire 500 acres for school building, and that this should include acreage around both Sanborn and South schools, for expansion and updating. Doherty, who walked the properties with conservationist Harold Rafton, was particularly enthusiastic about the amount and quality of undeveloped land behind and around South school, much of it in tealots. Doherty suggested that if all this land was acquired, the town would have a good location for the next junior high school.

In another move to get expert advice, the committee instructed Superintendent Edward L. Erickson to bring to their Nov. 26 meeting, a joint school-site meeting with the selectmen, information on hiring a consultant on the school building program.

Mrs. Virginia Cole, who suggested this, asked that preference be given to a consultant particularly knowledgeable about secondary school building, since junior high school building theory among the experts seems still in a state of flux.

Thanksgiving Day Service Scheduled

The traditional Thanksgiving Day service in First Church of Christ, Scientist, on Thursday Nov. 28, will include a period for testimonies of gratitude to God from individuals in the congregation. The service is at 10:30 a.m. at the church 278 North Main St. A brief lesson-sermon, consisting of readings from the Bible and the Christian Science textbook, relates gratitude to an understanding of God's goodness and love. The soloist, Mrs. Mitzi Garlin, will sing Handel's "Praise Be To Thee," accompanied on the organ by Robert E. Crosby. "Thanks be unto God for his unspeakable gift" (II Corinthians 9:15), the Golden Text of the lesson-sermon, states the opening theme of the service.

Junior High Observing Education Week

Andover West Junior High school has made extensive plans to celebrate American Education Week, this week.

The theme, "America Has a Good Thing Going - Its Schools," highlights the enthusiasm of the staff, faculty and students to have the entire community visit the school during the school day 8 a.m. to 2:15 p.m. to observe the junior high program "in action."

Each morning during the week, at 9:30 a.m. in the school auditorium, a program entitled "How You Can Help Your Child Get the Most Out of School," will be presented.

Students have prepared a giant invitation for the general public. A sign across the front of the school, with three foot high lettering, invites the community to "Visit Your School."

Parents have received a personal invitation encouraging them to visit the classrooms and view the many student displays located throughout the school.

Ecumenos Player Plan Twin Presentations

November 22 and 23 are the dates of the Ecumenos Player's twin production at the Ballardvale Community Center of Frederico Garcia Lorca's "The Love of Don Perlimpin" and Edward Albee's "The American Dream." Curtain time is 8:15 p.m. In the Garcia Lorca play, directed by Luigi Mian, John Ackerman plays the title role of a 65-year-old bachelor urged into marriage by his over-bearing maid, Marcolfa, and his next-door neighbor, played by Mary Jane Green and Barbara Coffman respectively. The unhappiness of his new wife, Bellisa, portrayed by Deborah Bluestein, and Don Perlimpin's sacrificial effort to remedy this situation form the action of the play. Adding to the brooding atmosphere are two spirits played by Scott Currier and Jesse Harris.

Mrs. Bluestein, of Andover, has had roles in other Ecumenos plays as well as creating scenery for their production of "Aria da Capo." Mrs. Green of Rockport has appeared with the Theater Company of Boston. Mr. Ackerman has directed plays for the Raytheon Company theater group.

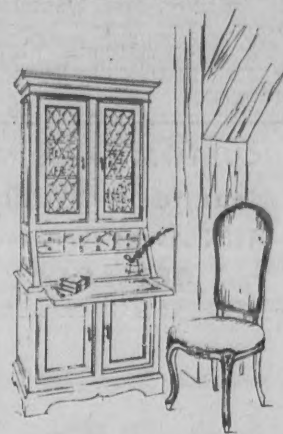

"The American Dream," a sharp satire on middle-class family life, directed by Marina de Haas, features Fern Johnson as Mother and Sanford Carlisle as Daddy, two parents seeking a replacement for their lost child at the By-by Adoption Agency. Grandmother, a sharp-eyed realist, is played by Diane Zagrodny. The social workers, Mrs. Barker, an ally of Grandmother in seeking a child, is acted by Jerry Fitzmaurice. The penniless Young Man who ends their quest by agreeing to be adopted is Irving Bluestein. Mr. Bluestein has appeared in other Ecumenos Players presentations including the title role in Valency's "Feather-top."

These plays are the first offerings by the players in their 1968-69 season. The audience will be seated in an informal coffee-house atmosphere. Tickets for the plays are available at the Ballardvale Community Center before the performances, at Original Designs by Deborah Bluestein in Olde Andover Village, at the Senior Citizens Center, or from Barbara Coffman, 3 Central Lane.

High And Junior High Curriculum Day Nov. 21

A secondary curriculum day will be held Nov. 21, Superintendent Edward I. Erickson announced at the School Committee meeting Tuesday.

Erickson said that secondary students would be released at 11 a.m. on that Thursday, so that the staff could hear Dr. Ernest Beale, associate dean of admission at the University of Massachusetts, address them on guidance, address them on secondary school guidance, Erickson said that plans would probably include small group discussion after the address.

Mrs. Virginia Cole of the School Committee commended Erickson on the last curriculum day, concerning ungraded secondary education, and praised the format of the day, which included breaking up of the audience into small groups for discussion of the topic.

Elementary schools will have regular school hours Nov. 21.

To Address Service Club

Gerry Moore, public relations manager of the Boston Patriots football team, will be the speaker at the meeting of the Andover Service club tonight at the Sheraton Rolling Green Motor Inn.

A social hour from 5:30 to 6:30 will precede the dinner, to be followed by the meeting and program.

Moore, who has been with the Patriots since their inception, was formerly a sportswriter for the Boston Post. He is familiar with Andover, having been here during the Patriots training sessions at Phillips Academy.

Veto Exception

The School Committee majority of Katz-King-Cole rejected the recommendation of Committeeman Fred Fitzgerald, Tuesday night that West Junior High School Assistant Principal Richard E. Neale be appointed to the coaching staff at West Junior High.

Chairman Dr. Richard A. Katz's vote broke the tie, when William Doherty voted with Fitzgerald to allow Neale to coach. In exception to voted School Committee policy that department heads and administrators not be hired as coaches in the system.

Committee On Family Living Submits Report

The committee on sex education and family living, led by Dr. Robert Lennon, reported to the School Committee Tuesday night and urged a K-12 program aimed not just at presenting information, but at developing attitudes. They described such a project as a difficult one, involving problems, and requiring careful preparation and skill in presentation but one which the schools should not avoid.

The school committee replied that it had voted last spring to initiate just such a comprehensive program as a regular part of the school program, and were waiting for a proposal to implement it. Such a proposal must come not from the committee, but from the administration, and Superintendent Edward I. Erickson promised to bring one.

Discussion brought out differences in opinion on whether to hire a coordinator into the system who will lead in the development of a curriculum suitable to this community, or to use the part-time services of a consultant from another system to begin teacher training, and curriculum development.

Joseph Normandy, Sanborn school principal and committee member, reported that he had tentatively set up an appointment with a Mrs. Charpentier, who is coordinator of such a program in the Newton system, who could come for weekly orientation and teaching of school personnel. The group agreed to await the results of Normandy's interview.

Philip Wormwood, high school principal and committee member, sounded a cautious note, reminding committee members that neither home nor church was finding this kind of attitude development easy and that the schools should make haste slowly, to avoid mistakes. They should be sure that teachers were securely prepared, and that adequate information and preparation of the community was accomplished as well. He was strong for hiring a skilled coordinator for such a school-wide program, instead of adding it to the other responsibilities of someone already in the system.

Mrs. Cole spoke for starting a pilot program, suggested movies-and-discussion as a promising way of attacking the program.

The Raytheon official said Wednesday that alternate sites have been proposed to the company but that no decision has been made to date.

He said that at the moment officials were awaiting the appeal period to terminate before making any decisions, reiterating that the current thinking is still that "Raytheon is still very much interested in Andover."

New Abbot Principal Installed

Donald A. Gordon, the first male administrator of the school since 1853, was formally installed as the 17th principal of Abbot Academy Friday during ceremonies in South Church.

Gordon was installed by Selectman Philip K. Allen who is chairman of the board of trustees of Abbot Academy. Allen commented on Abbot's appointment of a male principal and said he trusted that Gordon would perform his duties in the tradition set down by his predecessors.

Allen said he felt that the new principal, "had the breadth of vision and understanding to guide a troubled generation."

Principal speaker at the installation was Richard B. Sewall, master of Ezra Stiles College at Yale University who advised that new ideas of the current generation must be introduced into the American system, providing that a determination is made with regard to these ideas.

He said there must be collective joy in the education process and an understanding between young and old to bridge the generation and credibility gaps.

Gordon, in his address, called for complete involvement with the young and their problems. The purpose of secondary education, he said, was "taming the adolescent animal . . . to render the student both civilized and brave."

"The independent school is potentially better equipped to handle this educational function," the new principal said.

He asked that all work together, to close ranks, and "from a single community of old and young alike."

The invocation was given by Rev. Sidney M. Lovett, chaplain emeritus of Yale University.

A reception followed the installation at the Abbot gymnasium.

Hockey Association Opens Season This Weekend

The Andover Hockey Association will open its 1968-69 season this coming weekend and 217 Andover boys will take to the ice as the program gets underway. The boys will be divided into seven groups for initial assessment of their skills. The program includes youngsters of age seven and eight with little or no skating skill and reaches its peak with boys aged 13 and 14 who have progressed through the program to the point where their hockey and skating skills have become quite polished. The association has ten hours of ice time per week available at the Phillips Academy rink in which to conduct its program.

The younger boys spend most of the season learning general skating skills while boys in the next age level work on skating skills directly related to hockey as well as basic fundamental hockey skills. In the second half of the season these boys are placed on four teams playing a round-robin set of intramural games.

At the Pee Wee level (ages 11 and 12) boys continue to work to develop their skating skills and concentrate more on team play as well as on individual hockey techniques. Here, also, boys are assigned to four intramural teams for a series of games. Also, one team of boys of top ability in this classification is selected for several games with teams from other communities.

Boys in the 13 and 14 year old age group are classified as Bantams. In this group two teams are formed from the boys of top ability while the other Bantams play in the intramural program. The two Bantam teams will play several teams from other towns and the top team will play an international schedule.

For the third consecutive year the Andover Hockey Association has been invited to send its top Bantam team to Canada during the February school vacation. Plans are being finalized for the team to represent Andover in games with two teams in Toronto, one in Hamilton, Ontario, and one in Ottawa, Ontario, during this period.

Home games for the Bantams are played at Phillips Academy on Saturday evenings between 6 and 8 p.m. beginning after Christmas. Prior to that time the teams practice during these hours.

All of the teams and each of the boys in the program are registered with the New England Amateur Hockey Association as well as with the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States.

Each of the boys in the intramural programs receives a team jersey and boys on the top Bantam teams are fully uniformed. All boys in the program are covered by hockey injury insurance.

More than 30 volunteer coaches instruct the boys in the program. Several meetings have been held to review the placement of boys who have participated in the program before this year and a coaches clinic was held on Wednesday night to review drills and skills to be taught at the various levels. This clinic was conducted at the Phillips Academy rink and for the first time the clinic was open to fathers of the boys in the program. A large number of fathers took advantage of the invitation to attend the clinic to meet their son's coaches and learn more about the program.

School Guild Meets Tonight

St. Augustine's School Guild will hold its next regular meeting in the school hall tonight at 8 p.m.

Miss Anita Charpentier, R.N. health educator in the Newton school system will discuss, "Family Life and Sex Education."

Mrs. Lawrence Morrisroe is chairman assisted by Mrs. James Bateson, Mrs. Armand Franzese, Mrs. Robert Oelwang, Mrs. Joseph Reilly and Mrs. Edmund Sullivan.

United We Must Stand!

Richard Milhouse Nixon, the 37th President of the United States, elected last week in a close vote, will assume the most formidable office in the world on Jan. 20, 1969. We must wish him well in a position he has sought twice and now has successfully attained. In these times when patriotism is endangered by nonsensical demonstrations, riots, etc., at a time when our country is imperilled by the efforts of foreign powers, we must pray that Mr. Nixon will have the understanding, knowledge and health to lead the greatest nation in the world for the next four years. This we must do regardless of our political convictions, for in his theme, Nixon advised, "vote as though the whole world depended on it." Frankly, it does.

The Welfare Crisis

The current condition of the welfare program in this state described by some as "being a total mess," only points up more strongly the need for home rule in not only this but other areas.

The state takeover of the welfare program was supposed to bring about economies, make the system more efficient in serving the public, and save local communities considerable expense.

Just the opposite has apparently happened. According to a report filed this week, based on a survey made by a consultant firm, morale is low among social workers, regional officials have not been informed what their duties are, case loads are too heavy for the staff available and for the most part money is being paid to beneficiaries, yet no rehabilitation work is taking place.

When welfare departments, at the local level administered aid, there appeared to be proper treatment of cases. Persons at the local level examined the particular case and in many instances were more familiar with situations than a stranger from another area.

Last July, in what was supposed to be an economy and centralization move, the state assumed the responsibility of all welfare departments, thus supposedly relieving local tax burdens.

This is not about to happen, we can presume.

Last year Andover spent almost $250,000 in welfare costs. We may presume the town will pay the same if not more in the year ahead, although it will come out of the right pocket, instead of the left, so to speak, since the cost will be reflected in state taxes rather than local levy.

Administration of welfare needs some sharp attention. There is too much abuse, too much freedom allowed by the law.

Working at the local level, abuses could be detected more readily and curbed.

It is evident that much attention must be given to the state's welfare department, which, in five months has become a mushrooming burden to the taxpayer. The total cost appears to something like a snowball rolling downhill uncontrolled.

Our taxes, both locally and at the state and federal level are much too high already, thus we must defrost the rolling snowball.

Perhaps, with the national political campaign now ended, Gov. John A. Volpe, who instituted and pushed for the program, can now give it some attention.

Off The Top Of The Desk

Tuesday morning was another one of those days for service station attendants. Despite warnings hundreds of motorists awakened to find that fluffy white stuff falling on the highways and the snow tires still in storage. Almost every service station we passed was filled with waiting lines awaiting attendants to change from the conventional to the winter safety equipment. We must admit that the writer was also caught short, but managed to obtain service promptly, relieving the nerves after a rather slithery ride to the office. The same condition arose just a year ago when a sudden sneak storm, forecast as flurry turned into a major downfall catching everyone off guard.

Andover's Dave Bennett continues to capture national prominence as the top scorer for Boston College's Eagles football team. Despite the club having had three rough weeks following an explosive start, Bennett has still found the goal line enough times to be ranked seventh nationally in total points scored. Including Saturday's game with Army Dave had scored 72 points and still has the defensive eyes of opponents zeroing in on his efforts. The local griddler led BC in scoring last year with 42 points, a mark he surpassed in the second game this year.

William C. Skully, Jr., son of William J. and the late Monica (Ford) Skully, 5 Sandy Brook Circle, who passed the Massachusetts Bar examination last week, has had considerable law experience prior to his successful completion of the tests. At Portia Law school, he was selected as an editor of the Law Review. During his senior year there, he served as public defender in the Dorchester District court, where he was assigned indigent defendants by the court. He received the dean's letter of commendation upon graduation from Boston College. He is now associated with Atty. William J. Lee, with offices in Wakefield.

Seems the price of everything is going up these days. We noted with interest that the town of Marblehead at its next annual town meeting will be asked to appropriate more money for bell ringing in the town. Professional bell ringers there now receive $4.50 for a bell-ringing day, which includes major holidays. This is considered inadequate when it is considered that the bells are rung for an hour in the morning at noon and in the evening, so the selectmen there have decided to include additional funds in the 1969 budget.

Miss Lorraine Broderick, whose parents reside at 141 Haggerts Pond Road, will be spending the holiday season this year some distance from home. She is currently studying Chinese in the Republic of China. She is currently enrolled at National Taiwan University, Room 103, Girls' Fifth Dormitory, Taipei, Taiwan, Republic of China.

The Irony Of Bondsville

By Polly Bradley

Ironically, one reason fire fighters could not save the Bondsville mills is that the Palmer Canal, which had been built partly for fire protection, was so polluted by the very industries it served that it couldn't do its job.

Damage from the Bondsville fire, which wiped out seven businesses in the Bondsville section of Palmer, Mass., in October, is now estimated at $15,000,000 to $18,000,000. Over 400 people are out of work because of the fire.

The Palmer Canal, on which the Bondsville mill complex was built, took in clean water from the Swift River for use in the mills. The water was returned to the canal filthy, full of the residue of a paper factory, a wire works, and several textile mills which took cloth through its various phases of manufacture, screening, dyeing, printing and finishing.

The water was so dirty when it came out of the mills that it couldn't even be used to fight the fire when the mills went up in smoke.

Palmer Fire Chief Gus Theodore comments, "The canal was originally for fire protection, but when the Chicopee pumpers started pumping from it, it clogged up their strainer with residue - used pulp and mash - until they couldn't get any water out."

"We tried to set up in the canal at first, but lost an engine when the fire spread so quickly. Then we went upstream. We had to locate three-quarters of a mile upstream from the factories, with five trucks in relay to give adequate pressure. A pumper can only give enough pressure for a certain distance; then another truck has to be put on the hose to boost the pressure."

Of course, with so many trucks in relay it means not so many hoses were available for fighting the fire.

Chief Theodore says, "The water in the Swift River is some of the cleanest in the state when it reaches the mill complex. But once it goes through the Bondsville area, it's very polluted. There's no treatment. There's no treatment of the sewage from the town, either, and it goes right into the water, too. However, Palmer is working on a sewage plant."

Robert Hevey, fire chief of the neighboring town of Ware, comments, "The pollution in the canal definitely did delay the hooking up of the pumps. There was so much debris and stuff the pumper that tried just couldn't fill up on the canal. Its strainers plugged right up. That canal - that's what you call pollution."

Another factor in the fire disaster was that the canal was low at the time of the fire, and the fire spread so fast that it quickly engulfed trucks nearby and fire fighters had to move farther away.

How much of the disaster can be directly attributed to the pollution of the canal? It's hard to say after the fact . . . but it's fairly clear that the businesses in the Bondsville mill complex would have been a lot better off if they hadn't been drastically polluting their own emergency fire protection.

Usually pollution only causes damage downstream . . . but in Bondsville the industries were damaged by the pollution they themselves had created.

Is water pollution a menace? The people in Bondsville think so.

OF YEARS PAST - Eighteenth-century New England lives again inside the Parson Barnard House at 179 Osgood St., North Andover, where custodian Judy Belyea cares for four fully furnished period rooms. Here she dusts a Chippendale Fall Front desk built around 1780. The chair in the foreground came from Newburyport. The portrait, copied from the original at the Essex Institute, is of Rev. Edward Barnard, son of Rev. John Barnard, the fourth minister of Andover's North Parish. He grew up here while his father served the church. The clock was made in Roxbury, about 1805. Now closed for the winter, the house will re-open for the public in the spring.

ON COUNCIL

Mr. Robert D. Hoskison, husband of Maria Hoskison of 368 So Main St. has been elected to the student council at Franklin Institute of Boston. Mr. Hoskison is enrolled in Electrical and Electronic Engineering Technology.

The Andover Youth Center will introduce an ice skating program for women, at the Phillips Academy rink, starting next Wednesday morning 9 to 11 a.m. Interested women must enroll at the Youth Center prior to the first session, registrations will not be accepted at the rink.

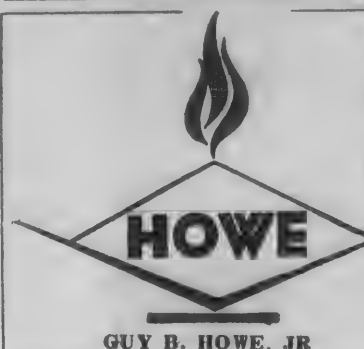

The five week program of informal skating for women will probably be the beginning of an expanded program which is expected after the holidays, to include instruction classes under Irene Larson veteran instructor and former Ice Capades performer. No children will be allowed in the rink area, but a sitting service will be available at AYC for children who do not need individual attention.

hind you, you just might wonder if it will open again. But you don't have too much time to wonder. For immediately in front of you is someone in an unfamiliar uniform telling you to leave your car over there in that area. You do.

With the car parked you are directed into a small, very crowded wooden building. A long line winds around within the confines of the small building to take advantage of every bit of space. You stand in line and wait. There are no chairs or benches. The line moves imperceptibly.

Finally, after standing about 45 minutes, you reach the counter and are given a form to fill out. The form asks you to state who you are, nationality, etc., but then requires that you tell exactly how much money you have with you and list any valuable such as cameras, watches, etc. It is very important that you list everything. Otherwise you just may be accused of smuggling. And this is a serious offense.

It is no easy task to fill out the forms in the crowded room. One must stand up and write using either of the two narrow shelves on two sides of the room. There are no writing tables.

When the form is completed you give the border guard the form and your passport. The passport is then dropped into a slot in the wall and it disappears from sight. If you are not expecting this, it might give you a second thought or two.

With your passport gone, there is nothing to do but wait.

This is what you do.

If you are lucky, you may only have to wait for a half hour or so. Each time a border guard emerges from that special room with a stack of passports, you might find yourself straining to see if your familiar dark green passport is among them.

Finally you see him handle it and call out your number. You reach and it seems good just to feel the little green "booklet" again.

Next step is to go next door where a cashier asks for five Deutsch Marks ($1.25). (The day after I left East Berlin, it went up to ten Deutsch Marks.) In exchange for the West German money, you are given East German money and every coin (made of aluminum) has the Communist hammer and sickle symbol on one side of it.

The idea of the money exchange, of course, is to have you spend this amount in East Germany. The money is useless elsewhere. Besides, you can't take it out of East Germany.

After the enforced money purchase, you return to your car where a border guard waits to inspect it. He wants to see inside, under the hood, in the trunk, and even underneath the car. The inspection is thorough.

If you pass the car inspection, you drive up to another steel barrier where another guard wants to see the carbon copy of the form that you filled out in the first wooden building. If this slip meets with his approval, he will raise his steel barrier and you may be on your way. You have "passed the test." You are now in East Berlin.

One's first impression of East Berlin is not exactly flattering to the Communist authorities. In the first place, the streets are devoid of people. Seldom is a person seen in the blocks near the Berlin Wall. Occasional policemen (Volkspolizei) are seen and even some soldiers are seen, with rifles, stationed at the four corners of certain buildings. In this district some World War II ruins are still in evidence. Some are being restored now. Others are overgrown with weeds.

But not all East Berlin is this way.

As one gets further away from the "Wall" signs of life begin to appear. More people are seen on the streets. Cars are seen. Modern buildings line the streets.

But there is something quite different about these streets, clean and attractive as they may be.

First of all, one does not see the large numbers of people walking up and down the streets that one sees in all the cities in West Germany. Nor does one see the same amount of vehicular traffic. As a matter of fact, traffic is sparse by comparison. And the shops are not "bursting" with goods as they are in West Germany. Yes, there are good, but certainly not in the same ample supply. And, I'm told by my American news-men friends who have checked, that the quality is not the same.

Then there is another thing that impresses the person from the West. It came to me slowly at first, but then strongly as I spent more time driving around. The buildings all seem to have a certain "sameness" about them. I can only describe many of the buildings - all relatively new, I would judge - as being "cold." The designs vary but little. And there really is very little style to them.

I was particularly impressed with this "impersonal feeling" of the buildings on one of the "show piece" streets. It is called "Karl Marx Allee" (until recently it was called "Joseph Stalin Allee.")

The street is a wide boulevard with brick apartments and other buildings on both sides. It is clean, uncluttered, and has relatively little traffic. I waited about a full minute for a car to approach so I could take a picture and not show a barren pavement.

As I drove through the streets I felt a mood very unlike anything

I had experienced in any of the West German cities. (By that time I probably had been in a dozen or more German cities on the other side of the "Wall.") East Berlin is certainly not destitute, nor is it in rubble. There is, however, a certain "grayness" or "dullness" or "lack-luster" that seems to prevail.

I wondered then, as I still do, if the East Germans get "used to" this.

One little incident that I experienced in an ice cream shop in East Berlin (where I was trying valiantly to spend all of my five East German Marks) perhaps throws some insight on the matter.

As I sat with my driver and guide talking some German and some English, a young and very friendly German fellow sat at our table. He asked if I were American. When I said yes, he said he had worked for Americans in West Germany at one time setting up poles, stringing wire, etc.

In the ensuing conversation, he described the system of pricing in East Berlin. There are three classes of restaurants, hotels, etc., he said, and for each class, there is a "set" price for commodities. The prices must not be changed. Prices only vary as to class and not from business to

Young Skiers Are Welcome For Little League Racing

Snow is good news to skiers. But many of Andover's skiing youngsters look forward to competition in the Eastern Massachusetts Buddy Werner Ski league.

Last year the Andover team comprised of boys and girls from ages seven through 13 dominated the 1968 ski league competition and won the Eastern Mass. Championship in competition with seven other communities in a meet conducted under U.S. Eastern Amateur Ski Association sanction.

Andover's Jack Young, who is active as vice president and Competition Chairman for the League said "Buddy Werner Leagues for youngsters is the vehicle of the United States Ski Association to build a uniform pattern of local ski racing as well as a winning National Ski Team." Young restated the goals of the U.S. Ski Team program as: "Establish the U.S. as the top ski racing power in the world within the rules of amateurism." Develop thousands of youngsters who we feel can learn more about themselves and develop as better individuals through their participation as ski racers."

Buddy Werner leagues are gaining momentum this fall with active divisional and regional chairmen "ting up new leagues.

Although this is still the "off season for skiing, plans for the Andover entree in the league are again underway.

Andover youngsters who are interested in the Buddy Werner Junior Learn-to-Race Ski program for the coming winter are invited to be present with a parent at the kickoff meeting at 7 p.m. Monday, Nov. 11 at the meeting room of the Andover branch of the Bay State Merchant's National Bank.

In addition to viewing ski films, this will be an opportunity to obtain information about the league and to make application to join the team in order to participate in dry ground practices and conditioning next month. "On the snow" competition is scheduled for selected weekends in January and February.

With the cooperation of Bob Dunn, director of the ski school the Andover team will again use facilities at the Boston Hill Ski Area in North Andover.

Team Coach Jim Reid, 3 Haven Drive, and Racing Coach Ted Sutton, 10 Center St., both former ski race competitors, emphasize that although they encourage the hot-shot racer, the Buddy Werner league is aimed at getting more youngsters interested in the sport of ski racing.

Andover coaches plan to include all team members as participants in local practice meets as well as selecting racers for competition with other communities.

In addition to the kickoff, a second meeting is scheduled for Nov. 25, also at the Bay State Bank. In addition to contacting coaches Reid and Sutton additional information may be obtained from James Eaton, team business manager, 80 Argilla Road, or Jack Young, 25 Coolidge Road.

Michael Bernardin was elected president of the Andover Boots and Saddle 4-H Club at its Oct. 30 meeting.

Whyte Awarded Scholarship

Eric H.A. Whyte, 3 Hidden Road a senior at Mount Hermon School, was named winner Saturday Nov. 2 of the coveted Dr. Henry F. Cutler Scholarship. The award is made annually by the Mount Hermon Alumni Association.

The scholarship, which covers the senior year, is awarded to the senior, selected by secret faculty ballot, who maintains the highest level of academic achievement, has combined superior native ability with a corresponding sense of proportion and eagerness to learn, is a positive and contributing citizen, and has indicated a deep social conscience and interest in the general improvement of human welfare.

He has been a consistent honor roll student, is a member of the students council, junior varsity basketball team and the varsity soccer team.

The award was announced during the homecoming luncheon attended by several hundred alumni and their families. As a token of the award, he was presented a volume of "A New England Schoolmaster," the biography of Dr. Cutler's 42 years as headmaster of Mount Hermon School. The presentation was made by Arthur T. Gregorian, president of the Mount Hermon Alumni Association and trustee of Northfield and Mount Hermon Schools.

Whyte is the son of Rev. and Mrs. James R. Whyte of Phillips Academy. Mr. White is chaplain of Phillips and former Mount Hermon School chaplain.

"This is good, very good," he said. "This way you always know what to pay. And no one can charge more."

To me the implications of this rigid, state controlled system were enormous, but I did not attempt to explain. He probably wasn't interested anyway.

But the fact that this young man, perhaps in his mid-twenties or possibly 30, had adopted the system so comfortably and with so little fault to find, made me wonder - and it still does - if many East Germans feel the same now. In time, will they accept the system?

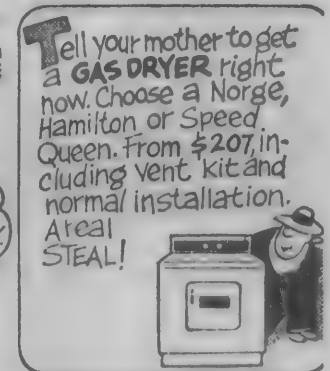

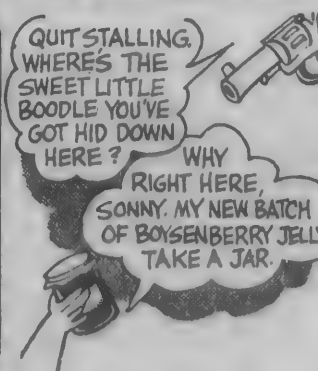

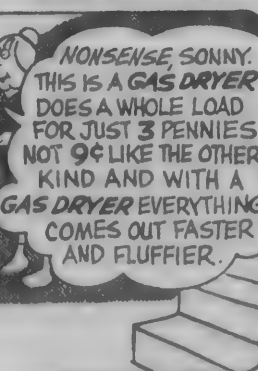

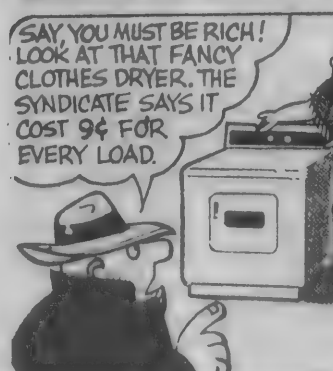

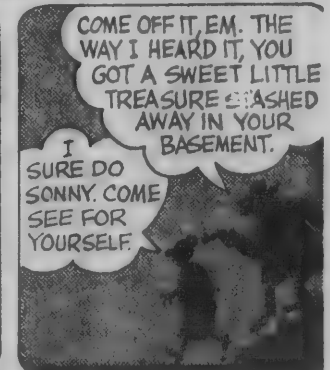

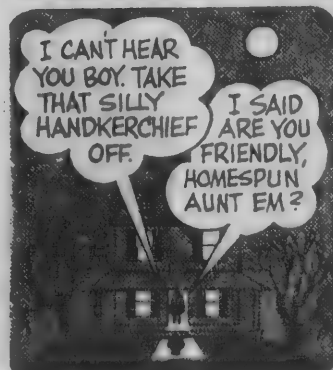

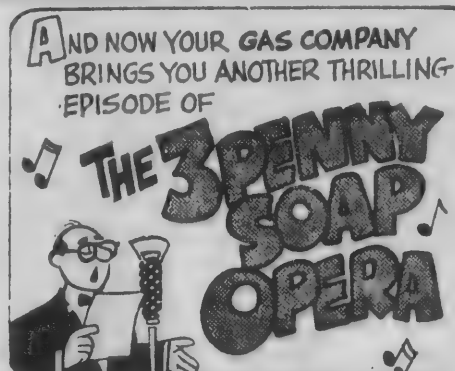

I imagine this is a worrisome thought to many West Germans who still yearn for the day when their land will be reunited.

Refurbished Youth Center Plans Annual Meeting

The Andover Youth Center is showing a new face these days. The exterior of the old building, which has given 72 years of service to the townspeople of Andover, has received a new coat of green paint.

The third floor of the building, used for art and handicrafts classes, has been completely redecorated. The paneled walls and new lighting will be welcomed by enrollees in the many courses conducted there.

A determined effort to eliminate a basement flooding problem of long standing has resulted in a major outside project including trenching the entire length of the two buildings, installation of drainage materials, and re-seeding of affected areas.

Earlier in the year a second floor room was renovated for use as the business office and the board room was also redecorated and completely refurbished.

Improvements have been supervised by the AYU House Committee comprising chairman Harold Rutter, Barbara Moody and Frank Markey.

The Annual Meeting of the Andover Youth Center will be held at the Center today at 7:30 p.m., according to an announcement by President Fred H. Harrison. Adult members and interested friends of the agency will be welcome. Business will include election of new directors, reports by the president, executive director and treasurer. Those attending will be informed of achievements of the past year and immediate and long term plans for the further development of the AYU program.

Census Bureau To Conduct Voter Survey

Census Bureau interviewers will ask about voter participation in the 1968 election during the bureau's monthly survey of households here the week of Nov. 18. Director James W. Turbitt of the bureau's regional office in Boston has announced.

Surveyed householders will be asked if they were registered, if they voted, if they cast a vote for President, if something prevented them from voting in 1968, and if they voted in the 1964 Presidential election. No questions will be asked about party or candidates. Answers will provide a statistical analysis of the voting habits of persons of voting age. The survey is similar to one made shortly after the 1964 general election.

The questions on voting will be added to the bureau's regular monthly queries about jobs that provide data to the U.S. Department of Labor for use in determining unemployment figures.

Households in the survey are part of a representative sample throughout the nation, from which the bureau collects data. All answers are confidential, and the information obtained may be used only for statistical purposes.

Nixon Needs Expertise To Deal With Congress

By James J. St. Germain
Professor of Political Science
Merrimack College

The new President will face a Democratic Congress in which all his expertise in Presidential-Congressional relationships will be tapped. Mr. Nixon fortunately comes to the Presidency with considerable knowledge of the workings of the two branches of government due to his extensive service in the Congress and Vice Presidency.

When Mr. Nixon takes command on January 20, he will face the difficult task of defining our national goals. The President-elect must attempt, of course, to gain the confidence of the people and the Congress and the more difficult assignment may be in obtaining Congressional support.

Practitioners of the art of politics are aware of the normally adversary relationship which exists between the President and Congress which arises from certain constitutional requirements and partly from the fact that the President is elected by a national constituency where as members of the House, for example, represent relatively small and sometimes narrow interest districts.

But Democratic control on Capitol Hill may be more apparent than real. The Northern Republicans and Southern Democrats have on many occasions voted in one bloc and this conservative coalition may provide Mr. Nixon with considerable legislative leverage. The President, as other Presidents have done, may dispense patronage in proper quantities in order to reach certain legislative objectives.

The President has other useful political weapons in his arsenal. The veto is a powerful device whether used or threatened. Messages to the people, preparation of the budget in his office, meetings and general sessions. These are designed to offer new ideas and suggestions on math teaching and curriculum development at all grades and all levels.

The three-day convention is sponsored jointly by the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics and the New England Association of Teachers of Mathematics. Richard Pieters, Phillips Academy, math department head, is co-chairman of the convention, and will preside at the first general session tonight. PA Instructor Frank Eccles will give an address on transformational geometry to one of the senior high section meetings on Friday morning.

The high school will be sending math department head James Murphy and Douglas Walshe to the meeting. The department heads of East and West Junior high, William B. Godfrey and Miss Ruth Nelson will attend, as well as WJHS teacher Miss Barbara Gerry. Math teachers Joyce Britton and Sandra Cohen will attend from the elementary schools.

Concert Friday At Academy

Phillips Academy will present the 41st annual James C. Sawyer Foundation concert Friday at 8:15 p.m. in George Washington Hall. The Melos Ensemble of London will give the concert. Seats are reserved and there is no admission charge.
